

SupraLeisure Anti-Spam Policy

The SupraLeisure anti-spam policy is simple: if you try to use SupraLeisure to distribute spam, then we will remove you and your organization from our service.

In addition, we may report you as a possible spammer to the social networks we work with. If we do, then it's likely the offending account(s) will be suspended by that network.

Likewise, if your account is suspended by a major social network for spamming, then your SupraLeisure account won't work on that network, either.

So, please, don't try to use our platform to spam.

To enforce our policy, we carefully monitor how our customers use our platform.

Why We Do This

- We hate spam!
- We designed SupraLeisure to help people and organizations connect with their market within the key parameters of our products and ecosystem – not to trick people into clicking links.
- Spam adds noise to social communications & wastes everyone's time

For the record, here is how we define spam (courtesy of Wikipedia):

Spam is the use of electronic messaging systems to send unsolicited bulk messages indiscriminately. While the most widely recognized form of spam is e-mail spam, the term is applied to similar abuses in other media: instant messaging spam, Usenet newsgroup spam, web search engine spam, spam in blogs, wiki spam, online classified ads spam, mobile phone messaging spam, Internet forum spam, junk fax transmissions, social networking spam, television advertising and file sharing network spam.
